UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
Northern District of California
San Francisco Division

JEFFREY MARTINS,
Plaintiff,

No. C 13-00591 LB

v.

ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR A PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

UNITED STATES CITIZENSHIP AND IMMIGRATION SERVICES, et al.,
Defendants.

[Re: ECF No. 17]

INTRODUCTION

Plaintiff Jeffrey Martins, an immigration attorney who represents persons seeking asylum in the United States, brought claims against the United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (“USCIS”), Alejandro Mayorkas in his official capacity as Director of the USCIS, the United States Department of Homeland Security (“DHS”), and Janet Napolitano, in her official capacity as Secretary of DHS (collectively, “Defendants”), under the Freedom of Information Act (“FOIA”), 5 U.S.C. § 552 et seq., and the Administrative Procedure Act (“APA”), 5 U.S.C. § 701 et seq., to receive, pursuant to his FOIA requests, the “interview notes” taken by Asylum Officers when they interviewed his clients. See generally Complaint, ECF No. 1.<sup>1</sup> These interview notes, which are kept in his clients’ “Alien Files” (“A-Files”), are being withheld by Defendants on the ground that

1 they are protected by the deliberative process privilege and therefore are covered by Exemption 5 of 2 FOIA, 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(5). See id. ¶ 5. Mr. Martins moves for a preliminary injunction enjoining
 3 Defendants from asserting Exemption 5 and requiring them to promptly produce the interview notes
 4 so that Mr. Martins can use them to prepare for his clients' upcoming removal hearings. Motion, 5 ECF No. 17. Defendants oppose the motion.<sup>2</sup> Opposition, ECF No. 20. Upon consideration of the 6 record in the case and the arguments of counsel at the July 3, 2013 hearing, the court GRANTS Mr.
 7 Martins's motion and orders the expedited Vaughn index described below.

8 STATEMENT

9 I. THE ASYLUM PROCESS

10 The following description of the asylum process is taken from the allegations in Mr. Martins's 11 complaint and the evidence he submitted in support of his motion for a preliminary injunction.

12 Asylum is a form of protection for persons who have suffered persecution or have a 13 well-founded fear of persecution on account of race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular 14 social group, or political opinion. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 16. A grant of asylum gives the 15 individual legal immigration status in the United States. Id. A person who is not in removal 16 proceedings may apply for asylum affirmatively, and one who is in removal proceedings may apply 17 as a defense to removal. Id. ¶ 17; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 17 ¶ 9. Affirmative asylum seekers 18 commence the application process by mailing a completed Form 1-589 to one of four USCIS Service 19 Centers. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 17; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 17 ¶ 9. The application then is 20 forwarded to the USCIS Asylum Office that has jurisdiction over the case, and the applicant is 21 scheduled to appear for an interview before an Asylum Officer. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 17;

 23
 24 <sup>2</sup> In their opposition, Defendants also moved (1) for partial judgment on the pleadings on the 25 grounds that only FOIA allows the requested relief against only the agencies (not the individuals), 26 (2) for dismissal of claims against certain federal defendants, and (3) to quash a discovery request.
 27 See Opposition, ECF No. 20. The court denied without prejudice Defendants' motions on the 28 ground that the court's scheduling order contemplated only Mr. Martins's motion for a preliminary injunction and that Defendants should file their motion on a properly-noticed five-week schedule after the court rules on Mr. Martins's motion for a preliminary injunction. 6/19/2013 Order, ECF
 No. 22. Defendants' motion was filed only three weeks before the July 3, 2013 hearing. See ECF
 No. 20.

1 Martins Declaration, ECF No. 17 ¶ 9.

2 An asylum applicant may appear for the interview on his or her own. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶
3 18; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 17 ¶ 10. Alternatively, at his or her own expense, an applicant 4 may be represented in applying for asylum, including at the interview before the Asylum Officer.
5 Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 18; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 17 ¶ 10. The applicant is responsible for 6 bringing an interpreter to the interview if one is needed. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 18; Martins 7 Declaration, ECF No. 17 ¶ 10. At the interview, the Asylum Officer reviews the application with 8 the applicant and questions the applicant under oath. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 19; Martins 9 Declaration, ECF No. 17 ¶ 11. As a general matter, questions are used to elicit information bearing 10 on the applicant's eligibility for asylum. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 19; Martins Declaration, ECF No.
11 17 ¶ 11. Some matters must be explored with every applicant — factors related to the elements of 12 the refugee definition, those related to mandatory bars and bases for discretionary denials, the 13 applicant's current immigration status, and factors that relate to the one-year filing deadline.
14 Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 19; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 17 ¶ 11. Some questions will be 15 essentially the same from applicant to applicant, such as whether the person has persecuted others or 16 previously applied for asylum, while other questions probe the particular facts underlying the 17 individual applicant's claim for asylum. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 19; Martins Declaration, ECF No.
18 17 ¶ 11. While conducting the interview, the Asylum Officer seeks to determine if the applicant is 19 credible. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 19; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 17 ¶ 11.

20 Asylum interviews are not recorded. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 20; Martins Declaration, ECF No.
21 17 ¶ 13. The interviewing Asylum Officer is responsible for taking notes that document the 22 interview. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 20; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 17 ¶ 13. If present, an 23 attorney for the applicant may also take notes and retain his or her own notes. Complaint, ECF No.
24 1 ¶ 20; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 17 ¶ 13. An interpreter may also take notes in order to help 25 him or her provide accurate interpretation, but these notes normally are confiscated at the end of the 26 interview. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 20; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 17 ¶ 13.

27 Asylum Officers receive training and direction about how they are to take notes of asylum 28 interviews. Complaint, ECF No. ¶ 21; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19 ¶ 3, Exh. A (overview of

1 USCIS Asylum Division Training Programs, from USCIS webpage). The USCIS Asylum
2 Division's Training Section provides training on a national level and on a local level in the field
3 offices. Complaint, ECF No. ¶ 21; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19 ¶ 3, Exh. A. All Asylum 4 Officers are required to attend and complete the Asylum Officer Basic Training Course ("AOBTC"), 5 which is a national training course that is specific to asylum adjudications. Complaint, ECF No. ¶
6 21; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19 ¶ 3, Exh. A. One of the AOBTTC lesson modules specifically 7 addresses "Note-Taking" by interviewing Asylum Officers. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 22, Exh. A 8 ("Interview Part 2: Note-Taking" lesson module); Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19 ¶ 4, Exh. B 9 (same). The Note-Taking lesson module provides an overview of the purpose of the notes taken by 10 the interviewing Asylum Officer, and it details the requirements and characteristics of "proper 11 note-taking." Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 23, Exh. A; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19 ¶ 4, Exh. B. The 12 lesson module explains:

13 It is essential for asylum officers to take clearly written and comprehensive notes 14 during the interview. Interview notes must accurately reflect what transpired during 15 the interview so that a reviewer can reconstruct the interview by reading the interview 16 notes. In addition, the interview notes should substantiate the asylum officer's 17 decision.

18 Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 23, Exh. A at 25; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19, Exh. B at 4.

19 While it is recognized that mistakes will occur, interviewing Asylum Officers are charged with 20 taking notes that are clear, accurate, detailed, and objective. Complaint ¶ 24, Exh. A; Burke 21 Declaration, ECF No. 19, Exh. B. The lesson module repeatedly emphasizes that "(a) reviewer 22 should be able to reconstruct what transpired during the interview by reading the interview notes."
23 Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 24, Exh. A at 25, 27, 32; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19, Exh. B at 4, 6, 24 11. The Officers are not required to transcribe every word that is spoken during the interview, but 25 they are instructed that their notes should accurately reflect what the Officer asks and what the 26 applicant says and further that there can be instances when having the notes include every word is 27 essential to capture the meaning of what the applicant has said. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 24, Exh. A 28 at 26-29; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19, Exh. B at 5-8. When appropriate, the Asylum Officer is also to note what an applicant does not say, such as when the applicant is not able to answer a question. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 24, Exh. A at 29; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19, Exh. B at 8.

1 While documenting the content of the interview, the Officer's notes must not include his or her 2 subjective opinions, suppositions, or personal inferences. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 25, Exh. A at 27-3 28; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19, Exh. B at 6-7. The note-taking lesson module states:

4 Asylum officers should take care that their notes will be perceived by others as an 5 accurate and objective record of the interview. For example, even an exclamation 6 point placed in reaction to a portion of the applicant's testimony may appear as a 7 judgment of the applicant's claim.

8 Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 25, Exh. A at 27-28; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19, Exh. B at 6-7.

9 After the interview, separate and apart from the notes themselves, the Asylum Officer is 10 responsible for completing an assessment of the asylum applicant's claim. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 11 26; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19 ¶ 5, Exh. C ("Decision Writing Part I: Overview and 12 Components, Focusing on 1st Three Components" lesson module on writing assessments and 13 Notices of Intent to Deny). The assessment provides the Officer's evaluation of the applicant's 14 claim. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 26; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19 ¶ 5, Exh. C. A supervisor 15 reviews all of the evidence and the interviewing Officer's assessment before a decision on the 16 application is made. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 27. In some cases, additional review by Headquarters 17 follows. Id. Thereafter, a given application may or may not be granted. Id.

18 If asylum is not granted to the affirmative asylum applicant and the applicant otherwise does not 19 have valid immigration status in the United States, a Notice to Appear is issued to the asylum seeker
20 and the individual is referred for removal proceedings at the Immigration Court. Id. ¶ 28; Martins 21 Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 16-17. The Referral Notice typically provides only minimal 22 information about the basis or bases for the Asylum Office's decision not to grant asylum. Id. ¶ 28;
23 Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶ 17.

24 Before the Immigration Court, the applicant, now formally referred to as the "respondent," can 25 renew his or her application for asylum. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 29. The Immigration Judge 26 reviews the respondent's asylum case de novo. Id. The proceedings are now adversarial in nature, 27 with the respondent's application contested by an attorney working for Immigration and Customs 28 Enforcement ("ICE"), another component of the Department of Homeland Security. Id. ICE Trial
Attorneys prosecuting cases before the Immigration Court have access to a great deal of information

1 about respondents, including each individual’s A-File, which contains all official record material for 2 a noncitizen for whom DHS or its predecessor agency has created a record under the Immigration
3 and Nationality Act. Id. ¶ 30; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶ 20. It includes all 4 immigration-related documents such as previously submitted applications and petitions, 5 naturalization certificates, documents related to removals from the United States, reports of 6 investigations, statements, correspondence, and memoranda. Id. Also included are the Asylum 7 Officer notes from the asylum interview and the Asylum Officer’s assessment. Id. ¶ 31. The 8 government allows ICE Trial Attorneys to use the Asylum Officer interview notes as evidence in the 9 removal proceedings. Id. In fact, the AOBTC Note-Taking lesson module specifically contemplates 10 that “ICE Trial attorneys have access to the files of cases that are referred to the immigration judge 11 or denied by the asylum officer. If interview notes are introduced to the court as evidence, the 12 immigration judge will also see the interview notes.” Id., Exh. A at 4; Burke Declaration, ECF No.
13 19 ¶ 4, Exh. B at 4. In many cases, ICE Trial Attorneys will compare court testimony or prior 14 written statements to the notes in an effort to identify inconsistencies, and they will use the notes to 15 try to impeach the applicant’s credibility. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 31. The AOBTC “Note-Taking” 16 lesson module also expressly contemplates that individual respondents and their representatives will 17 be given a copy of the Asylum Officer notes if the interview notes are introduced in proceedings 18 before the Immigration Court. Id. ¶ 33, Exh. A at 4; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19 ¶ 4, Exh. B at 19 4.

20 To prepare their clients and present their cases in the strongest manner possible, attorneys 21 representing respondents before the Immigration Court (like Mr. Martins) frequently will submit 22 FOIA requests to USCIS for their clients’ A-Files in advance of the individual merits hearings.
23 Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 34; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 5-8. For asylum seekers and their 24 representatives, a FOIA request for the A-File is often the fastest way — and for many, the only 25 practical way — to secure information from the A-File that is needed to prepare sufficiently in 26 advance of the merits hearing. Complaint, ECF No. 34; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 5-8. In 27 representing an individual referred by the Asylum Office for proceedings before the Immigration 28 Court, having the notes from the individual’s interview before an Asylum Officer can be integral to

1 the representation the attorney will seek to provide to his or her client. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 35; 2 Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 18-24. The notes are especially important to have when an 3 attorney is representing an individual whom he or she did not represent before the Asylum Office.
 4 Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 35; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 18-24.

5 For example, for clients he did not represent in the asylum interview, Mr. Martins uses Asylum 6 Officers' notes to:

- 7 • identify ways in which clients did not effectively communicate facts relevant to showing their 8 eligibility for asylum;
- 9 • better prepare the clients for their hearings and determine whether additional evidence should be 10 presented in support of the clients' claims;
- 11 • identify when possible inconsistencies may be emerging and question the client to develop an 12 understanding of what might explain those perceived differences in the way the client has 13 communicated his or her experience on different occasions;
- 14 • prepare clients for the cross-examination they will likely face from ICE Trial Attorneys; and
- 15 • assess whether the notes reflect a mistake or misunderstanding on the part of the interviewing 16 Asylum Officer or simply a miscommunication between the Officer and the applicant or the 17 interpreter.

18 Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 36; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 18-24.<sup>3</sup> Conversely, when Mr.

19 20 <sup>3</sup> Mr. Martins gives case-specific examples to illustrate these points. For example, he 21 represented a Somali woman who was referred for removal proceedings based on her perceived lack 22 of credibility, in part because the Asylum Officer did not believe that the Kenyan refugee camp, 23 where she spent time, existed. Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18, ¶ 24. He identified the issue from 24 the notes and obtained proof that the camp existed, and the Immigration Judge granted asylum soon 25 thereafter. Id.; see also id. ¶¶ 25 (identified context of conditions in Georgia relevant to a gay man's 26 petition for asylum), 26 (determined from notes that Asylum Officer, who referred a man from 27 Uzbekistan for proceedings based on his failure to meet the one-year filing deadline, had not 28 questioned the asylum seeker for the impact of trauma, which is a recognized basis for an exception for the filing deadline); with that information, the IJ granted asylum), 27 (identified and developed from notes information relevant to harassment of an elderly woman from Kyrgystan who then received asylum), 28 (learned during cross-examination in removal proceedings about challenges to gay man's credibility about his mistreatment in Tajikistan; asylum was granted only after continuance to develop the context (including his youth) to explain the perceived issues; this created delay and stress that would have been avoided with production of notes before the hearing).

1 Martins does not have the notes of his clients' asylum interviews, he typically must spend significant 2 additional time with affected clients in an effort to reconstruct their interviews from memory.
3 Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 47; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 18-19. This is an extremely poor 4 substitute for the notes themselves for reasons that include the effects of the passage of the time and 5 the difficulty clients have in remembering the content of their interviews due to the stress they are 6 commonly under in the interviews themselves. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 47; Martins Declaration, 7 ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 18. And having to devote the additional time to this subject in meetings with clients
8 has a negative impact on Mr. Martins's law practice. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 47; Martins 9 Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 5, 8, 19. The time and administrative burden involved in having to file 10 administrative appeals to challenge the withholding of the Asylum Officer interview notes in each 11 affected client's case also negatively impacts Mr. Martins's law practice. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶
12 47; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 5, 8, 19.

13 The AOBTC "Note-Taking" lesson module recognizes that Asylum Officer's notes will be 14 produced in response to FOIA requests at least some portion of the time such requests are submitted.
15 Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 39, Exh. A; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19 ¶ 4, Exh. B. It states:

16 Some asylum applicants or their representatives may obtain the notes as part of a 17 Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request. Although generally, notes are not 18 provided in response to a FOIA request, there have been occasions when they have 19 been provided.

20 Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 39, Exh. A at 4; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19 ¶ 4, Exh. B at 4.

21 In the past, Mr. Martins frequently received the Asylum Officer interview notes when 22 his clients' A-File contents were produced in response to the FOIA requests he filed as part of his 23 representation of his clients. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 40, Exh. B (sample of interview notes 24 (redacted) received by Mr. Martins in response to FOIA request); Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 25 ¶ 30, Exhs. B, C. Beginning in or around March 2012, Mr. Martins stopped receiving the Asylum 26 Officer notes of his clients' asylum interviews on a consistent basis despite his having requested 27 them (as he had previously) through a FOIA request for the A-File. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 41; 28 Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶ 31. Over the past several months, none of Mr. Martins's requests under FOIA for his clients' A-Files has led to production of the notes taken during his

1 clients' asylum interviews though he has repeatedly appealed to the agency and specifically 2 challenged the withholding of asylum interview notes. Complaint, ECF No. 41; Martins 3 Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶ 31. While USCIS has been withholding Asylum Officer notes when 4 requested under FOIA, DHS continues to make the notes available to ICE Trial Attorneys and 5 allows them to use them against affirmative asylum applicants who are referred for removal
 6 proceedings before the Immigration Court.<sup>4</sup> Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 43; Martins Declaration, ECF
 7 No. 18 ¶ 32. Even when the Asylum Officer interview notes are not used against a client in removal 8 proceedings, an attorney representing an affirmative asylum applicant in subsequent proceedings is 9 impeded in his or her ability to provide the highest level of quality representation when it is not 10 possible for the notes to be secured under FOIA or by other means. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 45.

11 II. MR. MARTINS'S FOIA REQUESTS FOR HIS CLIENTS' A-FILES

12 Mr. Martins is an immigration attorney who represents persons seeking asylum in the United 13 States. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 1; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶ 1, 4. He regularly represents 14 asylum seekers and other immigrants before the Asylum Office, District Immigration Office, 15 Immigration Court, Board of Immigration Appeals, and U.S. Court of Appeals. Complaint, ECF No.
 16 1 ¶ 11; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶ 4. When representing clients before the Immigration 17 Court and in other matters, Mr. Martins routinely submits FOIA requests to DHS (formerly the U.S.
 18 Immigration and Naturalization Service ("INS")) and one or more of its constituent agencies,

 22 <sup>4</sup> In circumstances in which notes from an individual's asylum interview are introduced 23 as evidence by an ICE Trial Attorney, the respondent then receives a copy of the interview notes 24 that neither the individual nor his legal representative currently can secure under FOIA. Complaint, 25 ECF No. 1 ¶ 44. If the respondent is represented, his or her counsel will receive a copy of the notes.
 26 Id. By then, the legal representative's ability to address the notes and adequately prepare the client 27 and the case has been seriously hampered. Id. Even where it may be possible to secure a 28 continuation of proceedings, there are negative consequences. Id. Due to the immense load of cases handled by the Immigration Courts and the effects of the backlog, a continuance can result in postponement of the proceedings for lengthy periods of time. Id. This delay, in turn, can negatively affect witnesses' memories and availability, increase the stress level for the asylum seeker, and prolong the time when the applicant is separated from a spouse or children he or she had to leave behind when fleeing the home country. Id.

1 including USCIS<sup>5</sup>, for a given client's complete A-File, which contains all DHS- and former 2 INS-generated records and documents pertaining to the client's immigration status and history.
 3 Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 11; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 5-8. Mr. Martins makes these 4 FOIA requests with his clients' consent and on their behalf. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 11; Martins 5 Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶ 5.

6 Mr. Martins made the following FOIA requests, which are at issue in this action:

- 7 • On or about March 26, 2012, Mr. Martins submitted a FOIA request for the A-File of his 8 client, N.S. This request is identified as NRC2012026531. In its response, USCIS indicated that 9 it had identified 190 pages as responsive to the request. On or about April 12, 2012, USCIS
 10 indicated it was releasing 58 pages in full and 57 pages in part to Mr. Martins, while withholding 11 54 pages in full. USCIS further indicated that it was referring an additional 21 pages to another 12 agency for it to respond directly to Mr. Martins. On or about May 29, 2012, Mr. Martins 13 appealed the determination to withhold material covered by the request, specifically challenging 14 the withholding of the notes taken by the Asylum Officer at N.S.'s asylum interview. On or 15 about June 10, 2012, after receiving Mr. Martins's appeal, USCIS indicated it was releasing an 16 additional 52 pages, 15 in full and 37 in part, to him. With the exception of one page, which laid 17 out questions and answers pertaining to the mandatory bars to asylum, the Asylum Officer's 18 notes of N.S.'s interview were not among the pages released. Defendants continue to withhold 19 the Asylum Officer notes of N.S.'s interview. The merits hearing for N.S. is set for July 12, 20 2013. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 52; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶ 37, Exh. F.
- 21 • On or about April 12, 2012, Mr. Martins submitted a FOIA request for the A-File of his 22

 24 <sup>5</sup> USCIS is the federal agency that oversees lawful immigration to the United States.
 25 Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 12. It is a component of DHS and is responsible for certain 26 immigration-related adjudications and benefits programs. Id. Among the programs that it 27 administers are those that are "humanitarian" in nature, providing protection to individuals inside 28 and outside the United States who are displaced by war, famine, and civil and political unrest, and those who are forced to flee their countries to escape the risk of death and torture at the hands of persecutors. Id. This includes administration of the Asylum Program. Id. Also part of USCIS is the National Records Center ("NRC"). Id. In addition to fulfilling an internal record-keeping role for the agency, NRC is the main office for the processing of FOIA requests directed to users. Id.

1 client, A.A.G. This request is identified as NRC2012033089. In its response, USCIS indicated
2 that it had identified 488 pages as responsive to the request. On or about May 29, 2012, USCIS 3 indicated that it was releasing 242 pages in full and 17 pages in part to Mr. Martins. The 4 agency's response indicated that 88 pages were withheld in their entirety and an additional 6 5 pages were referred to other agencies for those entities to respond directly to Mr. Martins. On or 6 about June 19, 2012, Mr. Martins appealed the determination to withhold information covered by 7 the initial FOIA request and specifically challenged the withholding of the notes that the Asylum 8 Officer took during A.A.G.'s asylum interview. On or about July 23, 2012, after receiving the 9 appeal, USCIS indicated it was releasing an additional 20 pages in part to Mr. Martins.
10 Defendants continue to withhold the Asylum Officer's notes of A.A.G.'s interview. The merits 11 hearing for A.A.G. is currently set for September 27, 2013. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 53; Martins

22 part to him. Defendants continue to withhold the Asylum Officer notes of C.S.'s interviews.
23 The merits hearing for C.S. took place on June 21, 2013, and asylum was denied. Complaint,

8 responsive material. In particular, Mr. Martins challenged the withholding of the notes
9 documenting the Asylum Office interview of S.S. On or about October 1, 2012, USCIS
10 responded to Martins's administrative appeal and indicated that it would release an additional 33 11 pages in part and one in full. Defendants continue to withhold the Asylum Officer notes of 12 S.S.'s interview. The merits hearing for S.S. is currently set for September 30, 2013.

14 • On or about January 19, 2012, Mr. Martins submitted a FOIA request for the A-File of his

16 indicated it had identified 231 responsive pages and was releasing 123 pages in full and 9 pages 17 in part to Mr. Martins, while withholding 80 pages in full. USCIS indicated that it was referring 20 included a specific challenge to the withholding of the notes of Y.L.'s asylum interview. In 21 response to Mr. Martins's administrative appeal, on or about August 7, 2012, USCIS released an 22 additional 40 pages in part and one in full. Defendants continue to withhold the notes of Y.L.'s 23 interview. The merits hearing for Y.L. is currently set for July 17, 2014. Complaint, ECF No. 1

24 ¶ 59; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶ 44, Exh. M.

25 • On or about July 27, 2012, Mr. Martins submitted a FOIA request for the A-File of his client, 26 I.A. This request is identified as NRC2012069832. On or about August 15, 2012, USCIS 27 responded and indicated it would withhold 27 responsive pages in full and 9 such pages in part.
28 On or about August 21, 2012, Mr. Martins appealed the determination to withhold responsive

1 material and included a specific challenge to the withholding of the notes of I.A.'s asylum 2 interview. In response to Mr. Martins' administrative appeal, on or about September 27, 2012, 3 USCIS indicated it was releasing an additional 2 pages in part. Defendants continue to withhold 4 the notes of I.A.'s interview. The merits hearing for I.A. was held on March 27, 2013. Asylum
5 was granted, but Mr. Martins nonetheless contends that he continues to have a need for the notes 6 from his interview, as they may bear on future representation that he may provide. Complaint, 7 ECF No. 1 ¶ 60; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶ 45, Exh. N.

8 • On or about November 1, 2012, Mr. Martins submitted a FOIA request for the A-file of his 9 client, M.A. This request is identified as NRC2012099752. USCIS's response indicated that it 10 had identified 195 pages as responsive to the request. USCIS agreed to release 152 pages in full 11 and 9 pages in part to Mr. Martins, while indicating it was withholding 24 pages in full. On or 12 about December 17, 2012, Mr. Martins appealed the determination to withhold responsive 13 material and included a specific challenge to the withholding of the notes of M.A.'s interview at 14 the Asylum Office. On or about December 26, 2012, USCIS acknowledged receipt of the 15 administrative appeal and assigned control number APP2012001489 to the appeal. To date, Mr.
16 Martins has not received any further response to the administrative appeal, and Defendants 17 continue to withhold the Asylum Officer notes of M.A.'s asylum interview. The merits hearing 18 for M.A. is currently set for November 16, 2013. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 61; Martins 19 Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶ 46, Exh. O.

20 As described above, Mr. Martins submitted FOIA requests for 10 of his clients' A-Files, and he 21 has not received the interview notes from any of them. He alleges that Defendants have refused to 22 produce the interview notes on the ground that they are protected by the deliberative process 23 privilege and therefore are exempt from FOIA under Exemption 5. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 5; see 24 Opposition, ECF No. 20 at 13 (acknowledging that the notes are being withheld on this ground).

25 ANALYSIS

26 I. LEGAL STANDARD

27 For a court to issue a preliminary injunction, a plaintiff must demonstrate (1) a likelihood of 28 success on the merits, (2) a likelihood of irreparable harm that would result if an injunction were not

1 issued, (3) the balance of equities tips in favor of the plaintiff, and (4) an injunction is in the public
 2 interest. See Winter v. Natural. Res. Def. Council, 555 U.S. 7, 20 (2008). The irreparable injury
 3 must be both likely and immediate. See Carribbean Marine Services Co., Inc. v. Baldrige, 844 F.2d 4 668, 674 (9th Cir. 1988) (“a plaintiff must demonstrate immediate threatened injury as a prerequisite 5 to preliminary injunctive relief”).

6 Prior to Winter, the Ninth Circuit employed a “sliding scale” test that allowed a plaintiff to prove 7 either “(1) a likelihood of success on the merits and the possibility of irreparable injury; or (2) [ ] 8 serious questions going to the merits were raised and the balance of hardships tips sharply in its 9 favor.” See Walczak v. EPL Prolong, Inc., 198 F.3d 725, 731 (9th Cir. 1999) (citation omitted). In 10 this continuum, “the greater the relative hardship to [a plaintiff], the less probability of success must 11 be shown.” Id. Following Winter, the Ninth Circuit held that although the Supreme Court 12 invalidated the sliding scale approach, the “serious questions” prong of the sliding scale survived so 13 long as the plaintiff satisfied the other elements for preliminary relief. Alliance for Wild Rockies v.
 14 Cottrell, 632 F.3d 1127, 1131-32 (9th Cir. 2011). Thus, a preliminary injunction may be appropriate 15 when a plaintiff raises “serious questions going to the merits” of the case and the “balance of 16 hardships tips sharply in the plaintiff’s favor,” provided that the other elements for relief are also 17 satisfied. Id. at 1132.

18 II. APPLICATION

19 A. Whether Mr. Martins Has Shown a Likelihood of Success on the Merits

20 As described above, Mr. Martins submitted FOIA requests for the A-Files for 10 clients.
 21 Defendants produced most of the documents contained within the A-Files but withheld the Asylum 22 Officers’ notes from his clients’ interviews with those Asylum Officers on the ground that the 23 interview notes are exempted from disclosure under Exemption 5 of FOIA. See Complaint, ECF
 24 No. 1 ¶ 5; Opposition, ECF No. 20 at 13. Specifically, Defendants contend that the interview notes
 25 are protected from disclosure by the “deliberative process” privilege. See Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 26 5; Opposition, ECF No. 20 at 13. After exhausting his administrative remedies<sup>6</sup>, Mr. Martins filed 27

28 <sup>6</sup> Under Rule 12(b)(1), Mr. Martins bears the burden of establishing subject matter jurisdiction. See Stock West, Inc. v. Confederated Tribes of the Colville Reservation, 873 F.2d 1221,

1 suit alleging that Defendants are improperly withholding the interview notes in violation of FOIA.<sup>7</sup>
 2 Complaint, ECF No. 1; see Nat. Resources Defense Council v. United States Dep't of Defense, 388
 3 F. Supp. 2d 1086, 1094 (C.D. Cal. 2005) (“Where a citizen has made a request for information under 4 FOIA, and the agency has refused in whole or in part to produce responsive materials, the act
 5 authorizes the citizen to bring suit in federal court challenging the agency’s refusal to disclose 6 documents to the requester.”) (citing 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(4)(B)). For the reasons explained below, the 7 court believes that Mr. Martins has shown a high likelihood of success on the merits of his FOIA 8 claim.

9 FOIA, which Congress enacted to overhaul the public-disclosure section of the Administrative 10 Procedures Act, allows private citizens to access government records. See Milner v. Dep't of Navy, 11 131 S.Ct. 1259, 1262 (2011); Minier v. CIA, 88 F.3d 796, 800 (9th Cir. 1996); see also Dep't of Air
 12 Force v. Rose, 425 U.S. 352, 361 (1976) (discussing Congress’s creation of FOIA). It “mandates a 13 policy of broad disclosure of government documents.” Church of Scientology v. Dep't of the Army, 14 611 F.2d 738, 741 (9th Cir. 1979). Underlying this policy is the principal that open government 15 allows “an informed citizenry to hold the governors accountable to the governed.” Grand Central 16 Partnership, Inc. v. Cuomo, 166 F.3d 473, 478 (2d Cir. 1999) (internal citations and quotations 17 omitted). Accordingly, every federal agency is required under the Act to make its records “promptly 18 available to any person” upon receipt of a reasonably articulated request. 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(3).

19 The “policy of broad disclosure” is not without limitation. See Phillips v. Immigration and 20 Customs Enforcement, 385 F. Supp. 2d 296, 301 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 14, 2005). An agency may 21 _____

 22 1225 (9th Cir. 1989). A plaintiff must exhaust his or her administrative remedies before filing a 23 FOIA action. 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(A); In re Steele, 799 F.2d 461, 465 (9th Cir. 1986). Where a 24 plaintiff has failed to exhaust within the administrative system, the district court will dismiss the 25 case for lack of jurisdiction. Id. at 465-66. To satisfy this exhaustion requirement, plaintiffs “must 26 request specific information in accordance with published administrative procedures, see 5 U.S.C. § 27 552(a)(1), (2) & (3), and have the request improperly refused . . . .” Id. at 466. Mr. Martins alleges 28 that he has done so, Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶¶ 62-65, and Defendants do not challenge Mr. Martins’s action on this ground.

<sup>7</sup> In his motion, Mr. Martins addresses only the likelihood that he will succeed on his FOIA claim; he does not address his APA claim. See Motion, ECF No. 17 at 8 n.1. For this reason, the court also addresses only the likelihood that Mr. Martins will succeed on his FOIA claim.

1 withhold a requested document “if the material at issue falls within one of the nine statutory 2 exemptions found in [5 U.S.C.] § 552(b).” Maricopa Audubon Soc’y v. United States Forest Serv., 3 108 F.3d 1082, 1085 (9th Cir. 1997); see Lion Raisins, Inc. v. U.S. Dep’t of Agric., 354 F.3d 1072, 4 1079 (9th Cir. 2004) (noting the Supreme Court’s broad interpretation of FOIA requires full agency 5 disclosure except where specifically exempted). These exemptions are “explicitly exclusive, and 6 must be narrowly construed in light of FOIA’s dominant objective of disclosure, not secrecy.”
7 Maricopa, 108 F.3d at 1085 (internal citations and quotation marks omitted) (emphasis added); see 8 Milner, 131 S.Ct. at 1265–66 (emphasizing that FOIA strongly favors openness and “broad 9 disclosure” with narrowly construed exceptions). The burden is on the agency to show that withheld 10 materials are exempt from disclosure. 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(4)(B); see Minier, 88 F.3d at 800.

11 Here, Defendants rely on Exemption 5 of FOIA to support withholding of the interview notes.
12 Exemption 5 “makes FOIA inapplicable to ‘inter-agency or intra-agency memorandums or letters 13 which would not be available by law to a party other than an agency in litigation with the agency.’” 14 United States Dep’t of Justice v. Julian, 486 U.S. 1, 11 (1988) (quoting 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(5)). The 15 Supreme Court has interpreted this provision as “incorporat[ing] the privileges which the 16 Government enjoys under the relevant statutory and case law in the pretrial discovery context.”
17 Renegotiation Board v. Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., 421 U.S. 168, 184 (1975); see also 18 NLRB v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 421 U.S. 132, 149 (1975) (Exemption 5 “exempt[s] those 19 documents, and only those documents, normally privileged in the civil discovery context.”); H.R.
20 Rep. No. 1497, 89th Cong., 2d Sess., 10 (1966), U.S. Code Cong. & Admin. News 1966, p. 2418 21 (the purpose of Exemption 5 is to ensure that “any internal memorandums which would routinely be 22 disclosed to a private party through the discovery process in litigation with the agency would be 23 available to the general public”). Accordingly, “[t]he test under Exemption 5 is whether the 24 documents would be ‘routinely’ or ‘normally’ disclosed upon a showing of relevance.” FTC v.
25 Grolier Inc., 462 U.S. 19, 26 (1983).

26 Defendants assert that the interview notes would not normally be disclosed because they are 27
28

1 protected by the so-called “deliberative process” privilege that exists under federal common law.<sup>8</sup>
2 Under the privilege, a government can withhold documents or prevent testimony that “reflect[s] 3 advisory opinions, recommendations and deliberations comprising part of a process by which 4 government decisions and policies are formulated.” FTC v. Warner Commn’s, 742 F.2d 1156, 1161
5 (9th Cir. 1984). The primary purpose of the privilege is to “prevent injury to the quality of agency 6 decisions” where “‘frank discussion of legal or policy matters’ in writing might be inhibited if the 7 discussion were made public.” Sears, 421 U.S. at 150 (quoting S. Rep. No. 813, p. 9). Its other 8 purposes include to “protect against premature disclosure of proposed policies before they have been 9 finalized or adopted; and to protect against confusing the issues and misleading the public by 10 dissemination of documents suggesting reasons and rationales for a course of action which were not 11 in fact the ultimate reasons for the agency’s action.” Coastal States Gas Corp. v. Dep’t of Energy, 12 617 F.2d 854, 866 (D.C. Cir. 1980) (citing Jordan v. U.S. Dep’t of Justice, 591 F.2d 753, 772-774 13 (D.C. Cir. 1978)).

14 There are two requirements to establish the applicability of the privilege. See North Pacifica, 15 LLC v. City of Pacifica, 274 F. Supp. 2d 1118, 1121 (N.D. Cal. 2003). First, the document or 16 testimony “must be predecisional—i.e., it must have been generated before the adoption of [a] 17 policy or decision.” FTC v. Warner Commc’ns, 742 F.2d 1156, 1161 (9th Cir. 1984); see also Sears, 18 421 U.S. at 152 (noting that “communications made after the decision and designed to explain it” are 19 not privileged). Second, the document or testimony “must be deliberative in nature, containing 20 opinions, recommendations, or advice about . . . policies [or decisions].” FTC, 742 F.2d at 1161.
21 As one court has put it, “the central question is not whether the information at issue bears a causal 22 connection to a final determination, but is rather whether the requested information independently 23 ‘reflects’ the deliberative process itself.” McGrady v. Mabus, 635 F. Supp. 2d 6, 18 (D.D.C. 2009) 24 (citing Public Citizen, Inc. v. Office of Mgmt. & Budget, 569 F.3d 434, 444 (D.C. Cir. 2009) (“Only 25 those portions of a predecisional document that reflect the give and take of the deliberative process 26

27 <sup>8</sup> “In federal question cases, federal privilege law applies.” N.L.R.B. v. North Bay Plumbing, 28 Inc., 102 F.3d 1005, 1009 (9th Cir.1996) (citing Fed. R. Evid. 501); see also North Pacifica, LLC v.
City of Pacifica, 274 F. Supp. 2d 1118, 1120 (N.D. Cal. 2003).

1 may be withheld.”) (internal citations omitted)). For this reason, “[p]urely factual material that does 2 not reflect deliberative processes is not protected”; nonetheless, factual material that “is so 3 interwoven with the deliberative material that it is not severable” is protected. Id. Indeed, one court 4 has cautioned that, while [f]actual material generally is not considered deliberative, . . . the 5 fact/opinion distinction should not be applied mechanically. Rather, the relevant inquiry is whether 6 ‘revealing the information exposes the deliberative process.’” Sanchez v. Johnson, No. C-00-1593 7 CW (JCS), 2001 WL 1870308, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 19, 2001) (quoting Assembly of the State of 8 California v. United States Dep’t of Commerce, 968 F.2d 916, 920 (9th Cir. 1992)). “The court 9 must, however, take into account the deliberative process as a whole, and whether the disclosure of 10 even factual material would reveal a decisionmaker’s mental process.” Hajro v. U.S. Citizenship 11 and Immigration Servs., 832 F. Supp. 2d 1095, 1112 (N.D. Cal. 2011) (citing Cal. Native Plant
12 Soc’y v. United States Environmental Protection Agency, 251 F.R.D. 408, 413 (N.D. Cal. 2008); see 13 also Nat’l Wildlife Fed’n v. U.S. Forest Serv., 861 F.2d 1114, 1118-19 (9th Cir. 1988).

14 “Even if established, the privilege can be overcome because it is a qualified privilege; that is, [a] 15 litigant may obtain deliberative materials [or information] if his or her need for the materials [or 16 information] and the need for accurate fact-finding override the government’s interest in 17 non-disclosure.” North Pacifica, 274 F. Supp. 2d at 1122 (quoting FTC, 742 F.2d at 1161).

18 In deciding whether the qualified deliberative process privilege should be overcome, 19 a court may consider the following factors: (1) the relevance of the evidence; (2) the 20 availability of other evidence, (3) the government's role in the litigation, and (4) the 21 extent to which disclosure would hinder frank and independent discussion regarding 22 contemplated policies and decisions. See id. Other factors that a court may consider include: (5) the interest of the litigant, and ultimately society, in accurate judicial fact finding, (6) the seriousness of the litigation and the issues involved, (7) the presence of issues concerning alleged governmental misconduct, and (8) the federal interest in the enforcement of federal law.

23 Id. (citing United States v. Irvin, 127 F.R.D. 169, 173 (C.D. Cal. 1989)).

24 A review of Defendants’ opposition reveals that they have not at this point met their burden to 25 show that the deliberative process protects the interview notes from disclosure (regardless of 26 whether the interview notes are only those sought by Mr. Martins or any interview notes generally).
27 See Opposition, ECF No. 13-15. Indeed, Defendants refer to the deliberative process privilege only 28 once (when they state in a conclusory way that they will continue to rely on it) and, aside from a

1 citation in a footnote to a single judicial opinion<sup>9</sup> – make no attempt to argue for its application. See 2 id.

3 Instead, Defendants argue only that Mr. Martins’s proposed relief – the speedy release of the 4 interview notes – is premature because Defendants have yet to submit a Vaughn index that identifies 5 the documents withheld, the FOIA Exemptions relied on, and a detailed explanation about why the 6 documents fall within the claimed Exemptions. See Vaughn v. Rosen, 484 F.2d 820, 827-28 (D.C.
 7 Cir. 1973); see King v. Dep’t of Justice, 830 F.2d 210, 223-24 (D.C. Cir. 1987) (describing the 8 content of a Vaughn index). This argument does not support a finding that Mr. Martins’s FOIA

10 <sup>9</sup> Without elaboration, Defendants cite to Phillips v. Immigration and Customs Enforcement, 11 385 F. Supp. 2d 296 (S.D.N.Y. 2005), apparently in support of their argument that the deliberative 12 process privilege applies to the interview notes Mr. Martins requests. Opposition, ECF No. 20 at 13 13 n.2. In Phillips, the plaintiff sought “selective portions of government records relating to the 14 immigration status of two former military officials of El Salvador, General Jose Guillermo Garcia, 15 El Salvador’s Minister of Defense from 1979 to 1983, and General Carlos Eugenio Vides-Casanova, 16 Director-General of El Salvador’s National Guard during the same period.” Id. at 299. Included in 17 this request were the “handwritten notes of an interview of Garcia by an INS official following his 18 request for asylum [], as well as a brief summary of the interview and an initial assessment of 19 Garcia’s request [].” Id. at 302. The defendant withheld these documents pursuant to the 20 deliberative process privilege. Id. The court concluded that the deliberative process privilege 21 applied to the handwritten interview notes (i.e., they were both pre-decisional and deliberative) and 22 that, although the notes arguably were “largely factual,” the factual information was not severable 23 from its deliberative context because the notes were not “a verbatim transcript” and instead 24 “appear[ed] to reflect a selective recording of information particularly pertinent to Garcia’s request 25 for asylum.” Id. at 303.

26 Anticipating Defendants’ citation to this opinion, Mr. Martins contends in his motion that 27 Phillips is distinguishable “for a number of reasons, including that the documents at issue there were 28 of a different nature than the notes [Mr. Martin] seeks.” Motion, ECF No. 17 at 15 n.3. Although the court will not attempt to guess what Mr. Martins means by this statement, it does note that other, similarly non-binding authority has come out the other way with respect to the applicability of the deliberative process privilege to “factual” portions of interview notes (even ones that do not purport to be “verbatim transcripts”). See Kubik v. United States Fed. Bureau of Prisons, No. 10-6078-TC, 2011 WL 2619538, at *7 (D. Or. July 1, 2011). Also, this case involves asylum seekers’ access to their own interviews, which implicates different issues – as with an inmate’s access to his own presentence report – than a third party’s access to information (including, in Phillips, access to the asylum officer’s notes of interviews of two former military leaders in El Salvador). In any event, given that the deliberative process privilege is qualified and depends on factors that include the relevance of the evidence, see FTC, 742 F.2d at 1161, the court’s expedited Vaughn index remedy addresses any concerns.

1 claim is unlikely to succeed. “The purpose of the index is to ‘afford the FOIA requester a 2 meaningful opportunity to contest, and the district court an adequate foundation to review, the 3 soundness of the withholding.’” Weiner v. FBI, 943 F.2d 972, 977 (9th Cir. 1991) (quoting King, 4 830 F.2d at 218). “The index thus functions to restore the adversary process to some extent, and to 5 permit more effective judicial review of the agency’s decision.” Id. at 977-78. The lack of a 6 Vaughn index, then, does not bear upon the merits of a plaintiff’s FOIA claim (i.e., whether an 7 agency properly may withhold a particular document); rather, the lack of one bears upon the 8 plaintiff’s ability to contest, and the court’s ability to decide, the appropriateness of the withholding.

9 Conversely, the court believes that Mr. Martins has shown – to the extent he can without actually 10 seeing the documents or having a Vaughn index – that he is likely to succeed on the merits of his 11 FOIA claim. Although the interview notes clearly are predecisional (because the interview takes 12 place and the interview notes are taken before a determination is made whether to grant an 13 interviewee asylum), Mr. Martins has put forth a credible argument, supported by authority, that the 14 notes are not deliberative because they most likely are near-verbatim transcripts of the interview and 15 most likely contain only factual material and do not contain the Asylum Officers’ subjective 16 opinions or Defendants’ deliberative process about whether to grant asylum to the interviewee. The 17 court uses the phrase “most likely” because, without a Vaughn index or an in camera review, the 18 court cannot describe the interview notes with certainty.

19 To fill in this data gap, Mr. Martins has submitted evidence – which Defendants did not contest – 20 showing that Asylum Officers are trained to take notes that are clear, accurate, detailed, and 21 objective and that do not include the Officers’ subjective opinions, suppositions, or personal 22 inferences. See Complaint ¶ 24, Exh. A at 3, 5-7, 10; Burke Declaration, ECF No. 19, Exh. B at 3, 23 5-7, 10. Mr. Martins also submitted interview notes that he has received in response to past FOIA 24 requests and that appear largely to be near-verbatim<sup>10</sup> transcripts of the interviews (or, in any case, 25 they contain factual answers to questions and do not contain any subjective opinions, suppositions, 26

27 <sup>10</sup> To be fair, the court notes that the interview notes Mr. Martins submitted state that they 28 are not a verbatim transcript of the interview. See Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 40, Exh. B; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶ 30, Exh. B, C.

1 or personal inferences). See Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 40, Exh. B; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶ 2 30, Exh. B, C. When pressed at the hearing about whether it conceded that the examples in the 3 record were factual and not subject to the deliberative process exemption, the government did not 4 concede the point but did not provide any basis at the hearing or in its opposition to allow the court 5 to conclude – given the transcript-like notes and the training to take only objective notes that are like 6 a transcript – that the deliberative process exemption applies.

7 In addition, Mr. Martins cites persuasive authority – also unchallenged by Defendants – holding 8 that factual information, such as summaries of interviews and records containing personnel data and 9 summaries of individuals’ performance evaluations, does not fall under the deliberative process 10 privilege when it is merely used during the deliberative process and does not reflect the deliberative
11 process itself. See Kubik v. United States Fed. Bureau of Prisons, No. 10-6078-TC, 2011 WL 12 2619538, at *7 (D. Or. July 1, 2011) (finding that a United States Bureau of Prisons Board of 13 Inquiry committee’s summary of staff members’ recollections and responses to a prison riot “is 14 merely a summary of facts, to which the [deliberative process] privilege does not apply” and 15 concluding that the summary must be produced pursuant to the plaintiff’s FOIA request; 16 distinguished between the interview summary (which did not reflect the deliberative process) and 17 the committee’s assessment of staff and inmate atmosphere at the prison and the committee’s finding 18 and recommendations regarding corrective actions (which did reflect that process)); McGrady v.
19 Mabus, 635 F. Supp. 2d 6, 17-19 (D.D.C. 2009) (finding that United States Navy “Master Brief 20 Sheets,” which contain personnel data and summaries of individuals’ performance evaluations and 21 which the Selection Board uses to determine which Navy officers should be promoted, are not 22 deliberative in nature
23 because, while they are “used as a tool in the decision-making process, and serve as an important 24 factor in the final promotion decision, . . . [t]hey reveal only the data used during the process, not the 25 substance of the deliberations”) (citing Public Citizen, 569 F.3d at 444 (“[A]gencies must disclose 26 those portions of predecisional and deliberative documents that contain factual information that does 27 not inevitably reveal the government's deliberations.”) (internal citations and quotation marks 28

1 omitted)).<sup>11</sup>

2 In light of the evidence and authority that Mr. Martins puts forth and Defendants' failure to 3 challenge it or make any argument to support a contrary conclusion, the court finds that Mr. Martins 4 has shown a likelihood that he will succeed on the merits of his FOIA claim.

5 B. Whether Mr. Martins Has Shown a Likelihood of Irreparable Injury

6 As he must, Mr. Martins also argues that he will suffer irreparable injury if the court does not 7 issue a preliminary injunction requiring production of the requested interview notes. Motion, ECF 8 No. 17 at 18-20. He argues that this is clear by looking to both Ninth Circuit precedent and the 9 practical realities of the removal process.

10 First, Mr. Martins argues that a Ninth Circuit opinion, Dent v. Holder, 627 F.3d 365 (9th Cir.
11 2010), requires Defendants to produce the entirety of his clients' A-Files, lest Defendants deprive 12 his clients of their Fifth Amendment Due Process rights. Motion, ECF No. 18. In Dent, DHS 13 initiated removal proceedings against the plaintiff on the ground that he was not an American citizen 14 or national, and had been convicted of an aggravated felony. Id. at 368. He had lived in the United 15 States since 1981, but according to the government, he was a citizen of Honduras and had been a 16 lawful permanent resident of the United States rather than a citizen. Id. The plaintiff defended 17 against his removal by arguing that he had been adopted by an American citizen when he was a 18 child, and was an American citizen himself. Id. It turned out that his childhood naturalization 19 applications, which corroborated his claim of citizenship, were contained in his A-File. Id. at 370.
20 Even though the government had the plaintiff's A-File, he was not given these documents, and the 21 Immigration Judge and Board of Immigration Appeals were not made aware of them in the removal 22 proceedings. Id. The Immigration Judge found the plaintiff removable, and the Board of 23 Immigration Appeals affirmed the decision. Id.

24 On appeal, the Ninth Circuit determined that the plaintiff had been denied an opportunity to fully 25 and fairly litigate his removal. Id. at 374. First, it explained that "[a]n alien has a Fifth Amendment

26
27 <sup>11</sup> Even if the interview notes do not fully constitute factual information such that the 28 deliberative process privilege may apply, given the evidence submitted by Mr. Martins, the court also believes there is a good chance that the privilege could be overcome under the factors described above. See North Pacifica, 274 F. Supp. 2d at 1122.

1 Due Process right to a full and fair hearing in a deportation proceeding.” Id. at 373 (citing 2 Burgos-Abril v. I.N.S., 58 F.3d 475, 476 (9th Cir. 1995) (citation omitted). Then, it noted that 3 Congress provided that, to meet his or her burden of proof in a removal proceeding, an alien “shall 4 have access” to his or her entry document “and any other records and documents, not considered by 5 the Attorney General to confidential, pertaining to the alien’s admission or presence in the United 6 States.” Id. at 374 (citing 8 U.S.C. § 1229a(c)(2)(B)). “This mandatory access law,” the Ninth 7 Circuit concluded, “entitled [the plaintiff] to his A-file.” Id.

8 Mr. Martins contends that he will suffer irreparable injury because Dent stands for the 9 proposition that Defendants must disclose certain documents within his clients’ A-Files such as the 10 interview notes. Motion, ECF No. 17 at 18. He argues that Dent recognized that the deprivation of 11 A-File materials raises constitutional due process concerns,” and then points out that, “in the Ninth 12 Circuit, ‘[i]t is well established that the deprivation of constitutional rights unquestionably 13 constitutes irreparable injury.’” Id. (quoting Ortega Melendres v. Arpaio, 695 F.3d 990, 1002 (9th 14 Cir. 2012)). Defendants contest this reading of Dent and argue that Dent’s holding does not extend 15 to the situation Mr. Martins is in. Opposition, ECF No. 20 at 17. His situation is that he made 10 16 FOIA requests and that, while most of his clients’ A-Files were produced, their interview notes were 17 not because Defendants believe them to be protected by the deliberative process privilege. Indeed, 18 Dent says nothing about any interview notes being critical to an alien’s Due Process rights and is 19 silent about whether any documents found within an A-File may be withheld on legitimate grounds.
20 Still, the overarching import of the decision is to emphasize the importance of an alien having access 21 to documents in his A-File that will bear upon his or her ability to fully and fairly litigate his or her 22 removal.

23 Second, Mr. Martins points out that the interview notes are important to his ability to fully 24 represent his clients during removal proceedings. As recounted above, Mr. Martins provided 25 unchallenged assertions that, with the interview notes, he is able to identify ways that his clients did 26 not communicate effectively the facts relevant to asylum, better prepare clients (including for cross-27 examination), and identify, investigate, and address perceived inconsistencies, mistakes, 28 misunderstandings, and miscommunications. See supra page 7 & n. 3; Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 36;

1 Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 18-24. He also presented unchallenged assertions that, when he 2 does not have the notes, he typically must spend significant additional time with affected clients in 3 an effort to reconstruct their interviews from memory. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 47; Martins
 4 Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 18-19. This is an extremely poor substitute for the notes themselves 5 because as time passes, his clients have difficulty remembering the content of their interviews.
 6 Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 47; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 18. Moreover, having to devote 7 the additional time to this subject in meetings with clients has a negative impact on Mr. Martins's 8 law practice. Complaint, ECF No. 1 ¶ 47; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 5, 8, 19.<sup>12</sup>

9 Third, Mr. Martins notes that some of clients' removal hearings are fast approaching. For 10 instance, the removal hearings for five clients are in 2013, with one of them on July 12, 2013 (client 11 N.S.). For another (C.S.), asylum was just denied. And although three clients have hearings that are 12 not scheduled until 2014 or 2015, Mr. Martins argues convincingly that the interview notes are 13 needed much sooner because his clients' memories and potential evidence fade as time goes by. He 14 also has identified the importance of the notes to effective representation of his clients. Complaint, 15 ECF No. 1 ¶ 36; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18 ¶¶ 18-24.

16 Thus, with Dent's emphasis on the importance of an alien's having access to documents in his A-17 File that will bear upon his or her ability to fully and fairly litigate his or her removal in mind, and 18 given Mr. Martins' unchallenged assertions regarding the interview notes' importance to his ability 19 to fully represent his clients, the court believes that Mr. Martins has shown, to varying degrees 20 depending on the client, that there is a likelihood of irreparable injury if a preliminary injunction is 21 not issued.

22 C. Whether the Balance of Equities Tips in Mr. Martins's Favor

23
 24 <sup>12</sup> Defendants argue that Mr. Martins lacks standing to seek a preliminary injunction because 25 it is his clients, and not he, who would suffer injury from not receiving the interview notes. The 26 court disagrees. See Hajro v. United States Citizenship and Immigration Servs., 832 F. Supp. 2d 27 1095, 1105-06 (N.D. Cal. 2011) (finding that an attorney had standing to challenge a government 28 agency's pattern and practice of not responding to FOIA requests because "[t]he delay in FOIA response time prejudices [the attorney's] ability to effectively represent the interests of his client, just as it prejudices the client's ability to access potentially critical information for the immigration case") (footnote omitted).

1 The court also looks at the equities involved in this action. On one hand, Mr. Martins has 2 provided evidence and authority supporting his argument that, without the interview notes, he will 3 not be able to fully and effectively represent his clients in their removal hearings, some of which are 4 fast approaching. As noted above, the court finds this argument to be compelling.

5 On the other hand, Defendants have, as they put it, “an interest in preventing improper disclosure 6 of documents that are properly protected.” Opposition, ECF No. 20 at 18. But as the court stated
7 above, with a record that is largely unchallenged by Defendants, the court believes that Mr. Martins 8 is likely to succeed on the merits of his FOIA claim, and the court doubts (again, on this record) that 9 the interview notes in fact are properly protected by the deliberative process privilege.

10 In its filings and at the hearing, Defendants also discuss the burdens of a Vaughn index, the 11 unfairness of allowing Mr. Martins to jump ahead of others in line and obtain preferential treatment 12 for the processing of his FOIA request, and the equities about how Mr. Martins waited to ask for 13 information. Id. at 18-19; Hughes Decl., ECF No. 26 at 3-4. These might be fair arguments in a 14 different context. See Fiduccia v. United States Dep’t of Justice, 185 F.3d 1035, 1040-41 (9th Cir.
15 1999). As the government well knows, the court is mindful of burdens on agencies. But here, the 16 failure to produce the interview notes is not because Defendants are backed up with FOIA requests 17 that are ahead of Mr. Martins’s requests in the queue. Rather, the interview notes have not been 18 produced because Defendants contended that they did not have to be, full stop. Indeed, from Mr.
19 Martins’s point of view, his requests already have been processed; after all, he received many 20 documents pursuant to his requests. See Reply, ECF No. 23 at 16 n.8. Also, as to Mr. Martins’s 21 alleged delay, the record here shows that Mr. Martin tried to work out the issue with the government 22 in light of the previous disclosure of similar records to him.

23 Accordingly, the court believes that the balance of equities favors Mr. Martins and entry of a 24 preliminary injunction.

25 D. Whether an Preliminary Injunction is in the Public Interest

26 The court finally must determine whether entry of a preliminary injunction is in the public 27 interest. For the following reasons, the court finds that it does.

28 As has already been pointed out, FOIA “mandates a policy of broad disclosure of government

1 documents.” Church of Scientology, 611 F.2d at 741. Indeed, when enacting FOIA, “Congress 2 recognized that no statute effectively provided for disclosure to the public by the ‘hundreds of 3 [governmental] departments, branches and agencies which are not clearly responsible to the 4 people.’” Kubik, 2011 WL 2619538, at *1 (quoting SDC Dev. Corp. v. Mathews, 542 F.2d 1116, 5 1119 (9th Cir. 1976)). “Congress believed that ‘the public as a whole has a right to know what its 6 Government is doing.’” Id. (quoting SDC, 542 F.2d at 1119). In light of this policy, courts have 7 found that “‘there is an overriding public interest . . . in the general importance of an agency’s 8 faithful adherence to its statutory mandate,’” Elec. Privacy Information Center v. Dep’t of Justice, 9 416 F. Supp. 2d 30, 42 (D.D.C. 2006) (quoting Jacksonville Port Auth. v. Adams, 556 F.2d 52, 59 10 (D.C. Cir. 1977)), and in the expeditious release of documents requested pursuant to FOIA “because 11 it furthers FOIA’s core purpose of ‘shed[ding] light on an agency’s performance of its statutory 12 duties,’” id. (quoting Dep’t of Justice v. Reporters Comm. for Freedom of the Press, 489 U.S. 749, 13 773 (1989)).

14 Here, Defendants’ duties include determining whether asylum should be granted individuals who 15 seek it. The public has an interest in Defendants’ performance of this duty. See Hajro, 832 F. Supp.
16 2d at 1108 (“[T]he effect on the public of disclosure or nondisclosure is substantial where the 17 information sought not available through any other means, as is the case for [the alien plaintiff] and 18 for [his attorney] and other attorneys requesting documents from their clients’ alien registration 19 files.”). The court agrees with Mr. Martins that release of the interview notes will allow him to 20 determine whether Defendants’ decision to deny asylum may have been based on misunderstandings 21 during his clients’ interviews. Reply, ECF No. 23 at 17. Accordingly, the court finds that entry of a 22 preliminary injunction is in the public interest.

23 E. The Injunctive Relief Ordered

24 Having determined that a preliminary injunction is warranted, the court must determine what, 25 exactly, the preliminary injunction should do. This determination is left to the court’s discretion.
26 See Mayo v. United States Gov’t Printing Office, 839 F. Supp. 697, 700 (N.D. Cal. 1992) (“[T]he 27 Supreme Court has made clear that, despite [FOIA’s] statutory authorization for injunctive relief, the 28 district court must still exercise its sound discretion in granting injunctive relief.”).

1 Mr. Martins asks the court to require Defendants to disclose the interview notes to him in short 2 order, while Defendants suggest that the production of a Vaughn index is the next step. In the 3 context of this case, and on this record, the court believes that it can fashion a process to suit all 4 parties' interests. The Supreme Court has stated that "FOIA was not intended to function as a 5 private discovery tool, . . . [and] we cannot see how FOIA's purposes would be defeated by 6 deferring disclosure until after the Government has 'presented its case in court.'" Robbins Tire &
 7 Rubber Co., 437 U.S. 214, 242 (1978) (emphasis in original); see Lewis v. IRS, 823 F.2d 375, 380
 8 (9th Cir. 1987). The way that Defendants are to present their case in court is through a Vaughn
 9 index. See Founding Church of Scientology of Washington D.C., Inc. v. Bell, 603 F.2d 945, 947
 10 (D.C. Cir. 1979) ("We have observed repeatedly that the Vaughn index is critical to effective 11 enforcement of FOIA. Without such an index neither reviewing courts nor individuals seeking 12 agency records can evaluate an agency's response to a request for government records.") (footnote 13 omitted).<sup>13</sup> Thus, to allow for a proper evaluation of Defendants' decision to withhold the interview 14 notes – while, at the same time, being mindful of Mr. Martins's legitimate need for the documents 15 very soon – the court will require Defendants to produce a Vaughn index in short order so that Mr.
 16 Martins and the court can decide whether the interview notes, or any portions thereof, are properly 17 withheld. The court understands that Mr. Martins alleges that Defendants have withheld the

 19 <sup>13</sup> To the extent that the parties prefer the court to do an in camera review, the Ninth Circuit 20 has explained that such a review would not be appropriate at this time:

21 In camera review of the withheld documents by the court is not an acceptable 22 substitute for an adequate Vaughn index. In camera review does not permit effective 23 advocacy. See Doyle v. FBI, 722 F.2d 554, 556 (9th Cir.1983); Vaughn, 484 F.2d at 24 825. Therefore, resort to in camera review is appropriate only after "the government 25 has submitted as detailed public affidavits and testimony as possible." Doyle, 722 26 F.2d at 556; see also Ingle v. Dep't of Justice, 698 F.2d 259, 266 (6th Cir. 1983) ("no 27 court should consider in camera review if a Vaughn Index can adequately resolve the 28 issue"). In camera review may supplement an adequate Vaughn index, but may not replace it. Cf. NLRB v. Robbins Tire & Rubber Co., 437 U.S. 214, 224, 98 S.Ct.
 2311, 2318, 57 L.Ed.2d 159 (1978) ("in camera review . . . is designed to be invoked when the issue before the District Court could not be otherwise resolved").

1 interview notes in their entirety and thus argue that a Vaughn index is unnecessary, but the court is 2 not so certain that Defendants argue (or will continue to argue) that the interview notes in their 3 entirety are subject to the deliberative process privilege (especially in light of Defendants' 4 suggestion that they produce a Vaughn index and the clear factual nature of the notes).<sup>14</sup> That being

23 agency withholds an entire category of documents on the ground that it per se falls within one of FOIA's Exemptions. The Ninth Circuit explained:

24
25 Consistent with its purpose, a Vaughn index is not required where it is not 26 needed to restore the traditional adversary process. Thus, in Brown v. FBI, 658 F.2d 27 71 (2d Cir. 1981), the Second Circuit held that a Vaughn index was not required 28 because the FOIA requester had acquired sufficient facts to permit the adversary process to function. Id. at 74. Similarly, in Lewis v. Internal Revenue Service, 823 F.2d 375 (9th Cir. 1987), we held that a Vaughn index was not required because the entire class of documents requested was per se exempt from disclosure regardless of the content of each withheld document. Id. at 380. The government gained no

1 said, and as the court said at the hearing, if the notes are similar to the examples in the record, see
 2 Complaint, ECF No. 1, Exhs. B; Martins Declaration, ECF No. 18, Exhs. B, C, it is the court's 3 holding that the notes are not subject to the deliberative process privilege, and the court does not 4 expect them (or, at minimum, the facts in them) to be withheld on that ground. Defendants had an 5 opportunity in its opposition to argue that the examples in the record (viewed in light of the training 6 given to Asylum Officers to take objective notes and omit subjective opinions, suppositions, or 7 inferences) support the application of the deliberative process exemption. As discussed above, 8 Defendants did not do this.

9 Because Defendants made no argument or showing to counter Mr. Martins's showing that the 10 documents are factual, not subject to the deliberative process privilege, and critical to the asylum 11 process, the court's compromise – a Vaughn index for a small number of documents that can be 12 reviewed in a couple of hours – is not a burden but instead is an appropriate prioritization. The 13 volume is only 162 pages for all ten cases, the United States Attorney's office has had all of the 14 notes since at least April 25, 2013, and (again) the likelihood is that the notes are factual and not 15 subject to the deliberative process privilege anyway. See Burke Supplemental Declaration, ECF No.
 16 24 at 2, ¶ 2; Government's Supplemental Submission, ECF No. 26 at 2.

17 The court divides the cases into two categories: category I (hearings in 2013 or – as represented 18 at the hearing by counsel with regard to C.S. – a recent denial with a short time to reopen) and II (for advantage from access to material facts the FOIA requester lacked.

28 Wiener v. FBI, 943 F.2d at 977-78 n.5. Here, because Defendants may not be making such a categorical withholding, the court believes that a Vaughn index will be helpful.

As to category I, by July 9, 2013, Defendants shall produce to Mr. Martins and the court a Vaughn index for documents (or portions thereof) withheld with respect to Mr. Martins's clients with initials N.S, A.A.G., S.S., and M.A. The court suggests a rolling production and in any event, Defendants should prioritize N.S.'s production. If Mr. Martins objects to any withheld documents, the parties must meet and confer by July 10, 2013 and must file a joint letter brief (that must not exceed 5 pages) by July 10, 2013 at 4 p.m. that describes the parties' respective positions and suggestions for compromise. The court sets a hearing for any dispute for July 11, 2013, at 11 a.m.

As to category II, by July 15, 2013, Defendants must produce to Mr. Martins and the court a Vaughn index for documents (or portions thereof) withheld with respect to Mr. Martins's clients with initials T.L., E.E., and Y.L. If Mr. Martins objects to any withheld documents, the parties must meet and confer by July 16, 2013 and must file a joint letter brief (that must not exceed 5 pages) by July 17, 2013 at noon that describes the parties' respective positions and suggestions for compromise.

CONCLUSION

The court GRANTS Mr. Martins’s motion for a preliminary injunction and ORDERS the parties to comply with the injunctive relief described above.

This disposes of ECF No. 17.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dated: July 3, 2013
